

Japan-Korea Joint Mini-workshop on Juris-Informatics

This workshop is a boot-up event to develop further cooperation between Japan and Korea, concerning Law and Informatics. The participants are expected to present their profiles, together with their research works. This workshop is open; any researchers who share the common interest are welcome to attend as observer.

Date November 25 (Tue), 2014

Venue National Institute of Informatics, Room 2001 A (20F)
2-1-2 Hitotsubashi, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo 101-8430, Japan

Program

10:00–10:30 Dong Kwan Jo (Legal Specialist, National Assembly Library (Former Person in Charge of iLaw Project at Ministry of Justice)): ‘Intelligent Legal Information System, Past and Present’ which is a general commentary on the legal information systems of the NAL and the iLaw Project.

10:30–11:00 Choong-nyoung Seon (KISTI): ‘Process Enhancement of iLaw System’ including short history of iLaw Project.

11:00–11:10 Short Break

11:10–11:40 Hanmin Jung (Head of Dept. of Computer Intelligence Research, KISTI): ‘Research on Prescriptive Analytics’ which maybe, one of future directions of iLaw.

11:40–12:10 Mi-young Kim (University of Alberta): Information Extraction in Legal Texts

12:10–13:30 Lunch

13:30–14:00 Shozo Ota (University of Tokyo): Fact-finding and Legal Subsumption: Standard of Proof and Standard of Correspondence between Fact and Legal Requirement

14:00–14:30 Ken Satoh (National Institute of Informatics): PROLEG: Real Legal Reasoning System in Civil Litigation.

14:30–15:00 Katsumi Nitta (Tokyo Institute of Technology): Researches of Automated Discussion System

15:00–15:30 Coffee Break

15:30–16:00 Akira Shimazu (JAIST): Legal Engineering and its Natural Language Processing

16:00–16:30 Satoshi Tojo (JAIST): Analysis of Criminal Case in Dynamic Epistemic Logic.

16:30–17:00 Yoshiharu Matsuura (Nagoya University): Development of An Environment to Share the Legal Information in More Accessible Way among Four Jurisdictions of East Asia

Organizer in chair Satoshi Tojo, JAIST

We will have a small unorganized party after the workshop.